The Fourth Annual Graduate School Commencement Ceremony
June 1, 2003

While the PCOM of 2003 bustles with the intellectual activity of hundreds of graduate students in numerous masters and doctoral programs amid the environs of a large medical school, it has grown from a small seed planted more than a century ago. When osteopathic schools were forming throughout the country in the 1890s, two students at the Northern Institute of Osteopathy in Minneapolis, Mason W. Pressly and Oscar John Snyder targeted Philadelphia as a future home for an osteopathic medical college. Although the city of brotherly love had a rich history of medicine, it had but one “osteopathist” by the time Pressly and Snyder graduated in 1898 and 1899, respectively. The two pioneering osteopathic physicians followed through with their vision, incorporating the Philadelphia College and Infirmary of Osteopathy on January 24, 1899. The first PCIO degree was awarded to a transfer student; the first PCIO class, comprised of two students, graduated in February 1900 from the fledgling college, then located at 21 South 12th Street.

The college prospered and moved through a number of sites in its first century, including 1715 North Broad Street, 832 Pine Street, 19th and Spring Garden, 48th and Spruce, and finally, the City Avenue Campus. During this growth period, the medical curriculum intensified, osteopathic research was initiated, and clinic and hospital services grew rapidly as the medical school’s student body and faculty expanded dramatically.

After nearly a century of training physicians, PCOM opened its first graduate degree program, the Master of Science in Biomedical Sciences, in 1993. The first five graduates in June 1995 marked the beginning of yet another period of growth for the college - the development of a graduate school. Ten years later, nearly 500 graduate students are enrolled in PCOM’s masters and doctoral degree programs.

PCOM’s graduate students pursue studies at the masters level in biomedical science, counseling and clinical health psychology, organizational development and leadership, forensic medicine and physician assistant studies. Doctoral-level study is offered in clinical psychology and school psychology with certificate programs for professionals seeking respecialization in clinical psychology. Through innovative distance learning methods and modern telecommunications technology, PCOM extends its Psy.D. program to off-campus classes at East Stroudsburg University and the Dixon University Center in Harrisburg.

The faculty and administration are pleased that you are with us on this important day in our academic year as we celebrate our graduate students, their research and their future in the academic and professional community.

Commencement Speaker

Rear Admiral Kenneth P. Moritsugu, M.D., M.P.H.

The Deputy Surgeon General of the United States

U.S. Department of Health and Human Services

Rear Admiral Kenneth P. Moritsugu, M.D., M.P.H., has held the position of Deputy Surgeon General of the United States since October 1, 1998, serving as the principal assistant and advisor to the Surgeon General. From February to August 2002, he served as the Acting Surgeon General, in which he had responsibility to directly oversee nearly 6,000 Commissioned Corps medical personnel of the U.S. Public Health Service and to function as the nation's top doctor.

Dr. Moritsugu has been representative to numerous national health care agencies and has provided expertise to various international organizations and governments. Of particular note, he served as the official U.S. observer to the Council of Europe's Select Committee of Experts on the Impact of the AIDS Epidemic on the Criminal Justice System in Strasbourg, France, and as the representative to the 75th Anniversary of the Pan American Health Board in Havana, Cuba.

Since 1994, Dr. Moritsugu has advocated for organ and tissue donation and transplantation, participating in the National Donor Family Recognition Programs in Washington, D.C. In his private capacity, he has been a member of the board of directors of the Washington Regional Transplant Consortium, the National Advisory Board for the Minority Organ and Tissue Transplant Education for Organ Sharing, the board of trustees of the National Kidney Foundation, as well as an active volunteer with the Transplant Recipients International Organization.

A noted educator, Dr. Moritsugu is an adjunct professor of public health at the George Washington University School of the Health Sciences and an adjunct associate professor of preventative medicine at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences. He has spoken and written extensively in many diverse areas, including health professions education, credentialing and quality assessment, international health, health systems development, health care delivery to underserved populations, emergency response, correctional health care, managed care, HIV, health promotion/disease prevention, organ and tissue donation and transplantation, and most recently, bioterrorism.

Having completed residencies in internal medicine and in preventive medicine, Dr. Moritsugu is board certified in preventative medicine and is a certified correctional health professional. He also holds fellowships in the American College of Preventative Medicine, the Royal Society of Health, and the Royal Society of Medicine.

Dr. Moritsugu was born and raised in Honolulu, Hawaii. He received a Baccalaureate Degree with Honors in Classical Languages from the University of Hawaii in 1967, an M.D. from the George Washington University School of Medicine in 1971, and an M.P.H. in Health Administration and Planning from the University of California, Berkeley, in 1975.

The College Seal

The College Seal first appeared in 1925 embossed on the cover of The Synapsis, the College's first yearbook. Volume One of The Synapsis was published by the junior class of Philadelphia College of Osteopathy in honor of the graduating Class of 1925. The first Seal incorporated the College motto mens et manus, "mind and hand." The Seal's origin is unknown, as is its designer.

In 1938, Edgar O. Holden, D.O. '22, dean of the College from 1924-1943, and Russell C. Erb, Ph.D., associate dean from 1937-1943, proposed and designed a Coat of Arms. The Coat of Arms appeared for the first time in the 1938 alumni magazine and featured a heraldic design that applies to the osteopathic profession. The three triangles are symbolic of the three segments of the vertebral column, which has a significant part in the science of osteopathic medicine. The hand emerges from a noble crown indicative of the regal aspect and dignity, as well as the healing powers of the human hand when applied to the art and science of osteopathic medicine. The College motto was retained and the Coat of Arms was utilized as the College Seal in various motifs through the mid-1980s.

An adaptation of the first College Seal was re-introduced in 1986. Today's College Seal, similar to the original, was adopted following the College's Centennial celebration in 1999.

The Seal features a centrally-placed shield within which are shown a scroll and a flaming torch of knowledge. Immediately above is the College motto mens et manus, reflecting the College's osteopathic origin. Uppermost and arranged in a radial pattern are streaks of solar brilliance. Separated from either side of the shield are branches of laurel joined and bound together at the center, close to the base of the shield. These components exemplify teaching, learning and the attainment of knowledge leading to successful careers in the health care professions. The name of the College and the year of its founding encircle the Seal.

The Academic Costume

The academic dress worn today for ceremonial occasions originated in medieval times and stems from the early days of the oldest universities. It is thought that long gowns were first worn for warmth in the cold lecture halls. And hoods may have covered the tonsured head (shorn crown) of priests and monks who made up the faculty. One university insisted on the tonsure for scholars. The hoods were replaced by the skull cap, which in turn was displaced by a headgear somewhat like that worn today.

The faculty and students of European universities still wear a diversity of academic regalia. However, in 1893, a United States intercollegiate commission dictated a uniform code which has been accepted by most American colleges and universities.

The commission devised three types of gown and three types of hood for the bachelor's, the master's and the doctor's degree. All gowns are black except for the associate in arts degree, which is gray.

The bachelor's gown features pointed sleeves and is worn closed; the master's gown has an oblong sleeve and may be worn open or closed. The gown for the doctor's degree has bell-shaped sleeves slashed with three velvet bars. The front of the gown is faced with velvet and is worn either open or closed. Mortarboards are generally recommended for caps, although soft, square-topped caps are permissible. Tassels may be black or gold and are usually gold for the doctor's degree.

The colorful hoods are lined with silk in the color or colors of the institution granting the degree. The length of the hood varies according to the degree: short for the associate's and bachelor's degree; medium for the master's and long for the doctorate. In addition, the hood is trimmed with velvet facing representing the academic discipline or school of study. Although there has been much innovation in cap and gown design in recent years, the standard colors representing the various academic disciplines have remained the same. These are:

White:	Arts and Letters or Humanities
Golden yellow:	Science
Purple:	Law
Lemon yellow:	Library Science
Sapphire blue:	Commerce or Business
Light blue:	Education
Brown:	Fine Arts
Dark blue:	Philosophy
Green:	Medicine—the color of life and growth. (Fellows of the American College of Osteopathic Surgeons wear hoods trimmed with crimson.)
